Progress on Yearplan

The Science caucus is determined on continuing its work to promote more in-person events in collaboration with other clubs at McMaster. We have introduced the topic of Housing amongst other caucuses and are working on collecting their interest. We have gained social media access, and are working on posting introductions of the caucus members by this week.

Past Events, Projects, & Activities

Since we

Upcoming Events, Projects, & Activities

Housing:

- Collab with other science organizations at McMaster (potentially)
- Our caucus members have been reaching out to housing organizations in the community
- We plan on executing this event in early 2023, because it is the time for students to start submitting their university applications and start looking for potential housing locations

Success Stories Workshop:

- Collab with other science organizations at McMaster (potentially)
- Students get to meet a PhD student, or another researcher who speaks about their specific career choices and pathways
- Currently on hold, because it is difficult to get TA's to discuss their journey with the current ongoing strike
- We are currently focusing more on the Housing event

Outreach & Promotions

We are slowly getting back to responding to our science email. We are currently focusing on creating content for Instagram, and slowly engage with our other platforms.

Successes

Our caucus members are doing great by collaborating their ideas. We are meeting on a weekly basis and everyone is being assigned to complete specific tasks, which they complete with accuracy. We will have started introducing everyone on social media.

Current Challenges

We may have to create new social media accounts for Facebook and Twitter, so it will be more work to reach the follower count as the current accounts. We may have to postpone our Success Stories workshop, to focus more on the Housing event, because we feel that it is more current and will be more helpful to incoming future McMaster students.
