Yearplan Update

SWHAT remains on track with its year plan. The team has just finished up a busy month, which featured successful SWHot Chocolate Booths, November Walkathon, Volunteer Photoshoot, Volunteer Bonfire, and Volunteer Merch voting.

Events, Projects, & Activities

General Service Usage

From our start of operations to now, we have completed 343 walks. We've seen increased service usage this month, likely due to earlier sunsets and our November Walkathon promotion. Our service user base includes 140 unique users, with a 34% recurring user rate. Updated walk distribution statistics are seen below:

Thank you to Simer, our Dispatch Operations Executive, for helping me compile these statistics.

Projects & Events: November Walkathon (Complete)

Our November Walkathon is now complete, with 132 walks completed over the course of the month (avg. 4.4 walks/night). This is an increase in the average number of walks / night as compared to our pre-walkathon numbers. Accordingly, we will be donating ~$132 to the Interval House of Hamilton. Over the month, there was a noticeable number of service users who cited the walkathon as a reason for learning about SWHAT and requesting our service.

Projects & Events: Volunteer Bonfire (Complete)

We recently hosted our Volunteer Bonfire event, which was a huge success, with ~50 volunteers in attendance. Volunteers greatly enjoyed the opportunity to relax with each other before a busy exam season, as well as to meet other volunteers on the team. Huge shoutout to Ishan, our Volunteer Affairs Executive, for planning and leading the event to huge success.

Projects & Events: Volunteer Photoshoot (Complete)

We recently also completed our Volunteer Photoshoot, which similarly saw ~50 volunteers attend. Photos taken include a mix of professional group photos taken by Ethan, as well as fun photos taken by groups of volunteers, for internal use. Another huge shoutout to Jessie and Bailey, our Public Relations Executives, for planning such a fun photoshoot, as well as Ethan for helping us execute our visions.

Projects & Events: Volunteer Merch Selection (Complete)

Our volunteer merch selection has been completed, and the order has been placed. This year, our merch will be Dark Chocolate Gildan Hoodies, which was the item and color combination most preferred by volunteers after voting. The cost of merch will be partially covered by the MSU pooled uniform budget line and SWHAT budget, with the remainder being covered by volunteers who will be paying $4 each.

Projects & Events: SWHot Chocolate (Ongoing)

We have been continuing our weekly SWHot Chocolate booths, which have continued to see high success. We serve ~150 cups each booth, with a noticeable boost in social media engagement following each booth. A number of service users have also mentioned to the team that they began to use SWHAT following learning about the service through the booth, demonstrating the initiative's success. We are looking to continue the booths for the remainder of the semester and continuing again in January until existing supplies are gone. SWHAT will also be hosting a booth at the Exam Care Day.

Projects & Events: Uniforms (Upcoming)

SWHAT is looking to purchase long-term uniforms for the service, enhancing safety on walks while also providing a cohesive service brand and identify. Currently, I am working with Adam to explore options including vests and jackets, with funding potentially coming from capital expenditure requests. My vision for these uniforms is that they will have some high-visibility features for enhanced safety; be comfortable enough for volunteers to enjoy wearing instead of personal outer layers; and have strong branding while maintaining some degree of confidentiality on walks. Ideally, I am hoping to roll these out when we return in January.

Outreach & Promotions

Summary

November has been a busy time for SWHAT promotions. In addition to the two campaigns happening this month, Jessie and Bailey have also been working on cleaning up our social media follower/following lists, as well as hosting a promotional giveaway.

Above is our November promotional giveaway post.

Above are the current Instagram Insights since our last report. Engagement has remained consistent with a slight increase, which can likely be attributed to our SWHot Chocolate booths as our follower count spikes would suggest.

Finances

Budget Summary

SWHAT is mostly on track with its budget, with most major purchases following our expectations so far. SWHot Chocolate, Intramurals, and Merch are three areas where spending is currently higher than originally planned, but I do not anticipate that this will be too significant of an issue for the rest of the year.

Executives & Volunteers

Executive morale is high, with many big events being completed successfully this month. We've also finally set a date for our long-awaited executive social, which we are all excited about. Volunteer morale is also especially strong, which is very impressive given the upcoming exam season. Many volunteers have stated that SWHot Chocolate Booths, Bonfire, and Photoshoot have been fun events outside of usual SWHAT shifts, and have stated that they are looking forward to future events as a result. Volunteer check-ins have also indicated that the volunteers are highly satisfied with, and do not feel burned out from, the daily operations of the service.

Successes

As mentioned previously, our events this month have all been huge successes. I am also very happy to hear strong positive feelings towards the service from everyone on the team, with morale and team spirit staying extremely high despite what is usually a stressful time for everyone.

Current Challenges

There have been a few unexpected (or unexpectedly high) costs this year that are placing some strain on the budget. I feel confident that this will not impede our core operations or major plans for the rest of the year, although it may limit some of the supplementary ideas we hoped to execute.
